2.1 Characteristics of Our System

- Outline of Our Remote Engine Starter System

2.2 Engine Start Procedure

NOTE

Technology Trend in Remote Engine Starter
2.3 Safety of Remote Engine Starter System

2.3.1 Fail-safe Function

2.3.2 Prevention of Error in Remote Control Operation

2.3.3 Warm-up Time

2.4 Preventing Vehicle Theft

2.4.1 Permission of Engine Start

2.4.2 Security Function
Technology Trend in Remote Engine Starter

3.1 North American Market

3.1.1 Temperature in North America

3.1.2 System Trend

[Aftermarket System]

[Genuine system]

[Immobilizer deactivation method]

2.4.1
3.2 Japanese Market

3.2.1 Cold Areas in Japan

3.2.2 System Trend

[Aaftermarket system]

[Genuine system]
4.1 Tasks in Our Remote Engine Starter System

4.2 Future Market Growth

4.3 Engine Starter System in Future

Future Effort

Profiles of Writers

Norio TSURUTA

Entered the company in 1988. Since then, has engaged in the development of car electronic devices. Currently the Team Leader of the AE Engineering Department 2, AE Engineering Division, AE group.

Akira TAKEE

Entered the company in 1987. Since then, has engaged in the development of car electronic devices. Currently the Department General Manager of the AE Engineering Department 2, AE Engineering Division, AE group.